三、阅读理解 (共 10 题, 每题 2 分, 满分 20 分)

Passage A

The marathon is one of the most challenging (有挑战性的) races in the world — 42.195 kilometres of non-stop running. But did you know how it got its name?

The story goes back to 490 BC (公元前) , in ancient Greece (古希腊) . The Greeks had just won a great battle (战役) against their enemies at a place called Marathon. A soldier named Pheidippides was chosen to run from Marathon to Athens (雅典) — about 40 kilometres — to tell the good news.

Pheidippides ran the whole distance without stopping. When he arrived in Athens, he shouted, "We have won!" and then fell down and died from exhaustion (力竭) .

The modern marathon was born at the first modern Olympic Games in 1896, held in Athens. The race was 40 kilometres long — about the same as Pheidippides's famous run. Later, the distance was changed to 42.195 kilometres, which is today's official marathon distance.

Today, people run marathons not just to win, but to challenge themselves. Many runners raise money for charity (慈善) . For most people, finishing a marathon is a great personal achievement — no matter what place they come in.

Passage B

We often hear about great sports stars — the ones who win gold medals and break world records. But sometimes, the most inspiring (鼓舞人心的) sports stories come from ordinary (普通的) people.

Derek Redmond was a British runner. At the 1992 Barcelona Olympics, he was running in the 400-metre semi-final (半决赛) . He was one of the favourites to win. But suddenly, his hamstring (腿筋) tore. He fell to the ground in great pain (疼痛) .

The medical team ran towards him, but Derek waved them away. He got up and started hopping (单脚跳) towards the finishing line — he wanted to finish the race. Then, a man ran onto the track (跑道) . It was Derek's father. He put his arm around his son and said, "You don't have to do this." Derek replied, "Yes, I do." Together, father and son walked to the finishing line. The crowd gave them a standing ovation (起立鼓掌) .

Derek didn't win a medal that day, but he won the hearts of millions. His story shows that true sportsman spirit is not about winning — it's about having the courage to finish what you started, no matter how hard it gets.

My Sports Story

Last year, I joined the school's 1,500-metre race. I was nervous because I was not a fast runner.

During the race, I fell behind quickly. After the first lap（圈）, I wanted to give up. But my classmates shouted, "Go for it! You can do it!" Their cheers gave me courage. I kept running, step by step.

I finished last, but I was proud of myself. I learned that winning is not everything — what matters is that you never give up. The spirit of trying your best is the real victory.
