Xu Xiake was a famous Chinese traveller and geographer. He was born in 1587 in Jiangsu. From an early age, Xu dreamed of visiting all of China's famous mountains, rivers and seas. His mother always supported him.

At the age of 22, Xu started his first long journey. For over 30 years, he travelled to many places in China. At that time, there were no cars or planes, so he had to walk or ride horses. The trips were not as comfortable as they are today, but Xu never gave up.

Xu kept a diary during his travels. He wrote down what he saw and discovered. His diary became the famous book Xu Xiake's Travels (《徐霞客游记》). It is not as simple as just a travel diary — it also includes important geographical discoveries. Passage B

Dear Jenny,

I'm having a wonderful time in China! I've been here for two weeks and every day has been an adventure (冒险) .

Last week, I was in Chengdu. I tried Sichuan hot pot for the first time. At first, I thought it was too spicy (辣的) — my face felt like it was burning! But after a while, surprisingly, I started to enjoy the taste. Now I think hot pot is as delicious as the best food in my hometown. My Chinese friend told me, "When in China, do as the Chinese do." Eating spicy food is an important part of the culture here.

This week, I'm in Xi'an. Yesterday I visited the Terracotta Warriors (兵马俑). They are as amazing as the pictures in books — even more amazing actually! Each warrior has a different face. Can you imagine that these were made over 2,000 years ago? Seeing such an ancient wonder in real life is completely different from seeing photos.

Tomorrow I'm going to climb Mount Hua (华山). I've heard it's one of the most dangerous hikes in the world, but the view from the peak must be incredible. I'm really looking forward to it!

How is your summer going? Write back and tell me everything!

Love,
Amy
